BUSSELL HWY	CAREY PARK	The Bussell Highway, from Busselton to Augusta, was officially named when it appeared in the Government Gazette of April 8, 1932. The name was the initiative of the Premier, Sir James Mitchell, who thought that as Busselton was celebrating its centenary on that day, the road might fittingly be named the "Bussell Highway". In early 1932 the Main Roads Board completed construction of the road between Busselton and Augusta, "a distance of about 60 miles, and a very fine highway" The Secretary of the Premier's Department wrote to the Under Secretary for Lands on March 30 1932, proposing approval of Sir James suggestion, and arrangement of the approval in such a manner that a telegram would be sent on April 8 announcing this to the local people for the first time. After consulting with Dr Battye that the Bussell name was a good choice, the name was approved by the Minister for Lands, and appeared in the gazette of 8 April The April gazettal renamed the portion of Quindalup Road from the western boundary of the Busselton Municipality to the "turn-off" in Sussex Location2, and then named the road which headed south westerly via Vasse Siding, Carburnup Bridge,

		Cowamerup, and Margaret River to Augusta. In 1943 a proposal was put to the Nomenclature Advisory Committee "that the Bussell Highway, which runs from Augusta to Busselton, be extended to the junction of the main Busselton Road with the South Western Highway at Picton. In 1946 the four local governments that the proposal affected, Bunbury Municipality, Bunbury Road Board, Capel Road Board and Sussex Road Board were all contacted for support for the proposal. The Bunbury Road Board and Sussex Road Board agreed to the proposal, but Capel wished it to be named Roberts Highway, after a pioneer, and Bunbury Municipality would not support renaming Spencer Street and Forrest Avenue, so suggested the name terminate at the Municipal boundary. In July 1946 the proposal was supported by the Nomenclat and submitted to the Minister. Following the Minister's approval, the gazettal of the extension of the name took place in 13 September 1946. The gazettal notice renames Bunbury Road and Vasse Road, and in the Busselton Townsite, portion of Queen Street, portion of Albert Street and Causeway Road. The changes in the Townsite were never implemented.

BUSSELL HWY	USHER	The Bussell Highway, from Busselton to Augusta, was officially named when it appeared in the Government Gazette of April 8, 1932. The name was the initiative of the Premier, Sir James Mitchell, who thought that as Busselton was celebrating its centenary on that day, the road might fittingly be named the "Bussell Highway". In early 1932 the Main Roads Board completed construction of the road between Busselton and Augusta, "a distance of about 60 miles, and a very fine highway" The Secretary of the Premier's Department wrote to the Under Secretary for Lands on March 30 1932, proposing approval of Sir James suggestion, and arrangement of the approval in such a manner that a telegram would be sent on April 8 announcing this to the local people for the first time. After consulting with Dr Battye that the Bussell name was a good choice, the name was approved by the Minister for Lands, and appeared in the gazette of 8 April The April gazettal renamed the portion of Quindalup Road from the western boundary of the Busselton Municipality to the "turn-off" in Sussex Location2, and then named the road which headed south westerly via Vasse Siding, Carburnup Bridge, Cowamerup, and Margaret River to Augusta. In 1943 a proposal was put to the Nomenclature Advisory Committee "that the Bussell Highway, which runs from Augusta to Busselton, be extended to the junction of the main Busselton Road with the South Western Highway at Picton. In 1946 the four local governments that the proposal affected, Bunbury Municipality, Bunbury Road Board, Capel Road Board and Sussex Road Board were all contacted for support for the proposal. The Bunbury Road Board and Sussex Road Board agreed to the proposal, but Capel wished it to be named Roberts Highway, after a pioneer, and Bunbury Municipality would not support renaming Spencer Street and Forrest Avenue, so suggested the name terminate at the

		Municipal boundary. In July 1946 the proposal was supported by the Nomenclat and submitted to the Minister. Following the Minister's approval, the gazettal of the extension of the name took place in 13 September 1946. The gazettal notice renames Bunbury Road and Vasse Road, and in the Busselton Townsite, portion of Queen Street, portion of Albert Street and Causeway Road. The changes in the Townsite were never implemented.

EELUP RTY	EAST BUNBURY	Site of the original Eelup Homestead. 'Eelup' originally applied to the hold-ings of the Scott family acquired 4th January 1839. Additional information on the meaning of Eelup supplied by Brendon Kelly, Department of Environment, Bunbury, 17/05/2004. Eelup, Elaap, i-lap, The name the Scotts (first Bunbury farmers) gave to their farm on the banks of the Preston River. There is no word beginning with 'ee' in Noongar and I believe Eelup is actually derived from Beelya / Beelyup or Bilya / Bilyup or Beela / Beelup... essentially Beela being a river (any river) and the Beelup being the river people. I suggest that the B was left off as the settlers 'heard' the Aboriginal sound as B-eelup with the B not being picked up (remember that the settlers themselves had broad accents and were listening to a strange and new language). So the Beela (river) people or Beelup became the Eelup. "Our immediate tribe bears the cognomen of the Elaap Tribe, from their headquarters being at Elaap which is the land immediately at the entrance of the Inlet up to the River Preston". Clifton M.W. 1841. Letterbook No 1 pages 313-316 "...the country around Port Leschenault, Koombana Bay - where Bunbury now stands... in the district of Wellington, Western Australia".
